«La differenza tra le persone sta solo nel loro avere maggiore o minore accesso alla conoscenza» (Lev Tolstoj)

Il 29 aprile le autorità turche hanno bloccato l'accesso a tutte le versioni linguistiche di Wikipedia, ledendo il diritto di milioni di persone di accedere a informazioni storiche, culturali e scientifiche neutrali e munite di fonti verificabili.

La comunità di lingua italiana esprime la sua solidarietà alla popolazione turca e chiede il ripristino del libero accesso all'enciclopedia.

Con liberty a Milano si usa indicare l'esperienza dell'omonimo stile diffusosi nella città ambrosiana tra i primi anni del Novecento e lo scoppio della prima guerra mondiale nel 1915. Fu infatti nel capoluogo lombardo che lo stile liberty trovò, grazie allo stretto legame con la rampante borghesia industriale dell'epoca, un fertile terreno per un rapido sviluppo che lo vide spaziare dalle influenze dell'art nouveau floreale francese allo jugendstil tedesco e all'ecllettismo.

Con l'Esposizione Nazionale del 1881, a vent'anni dall'Unità della nazione, la città di Milano si consacrò definitivamente come il principale polo industriale italiano. La città vide la formazione di una nuova classe borghese emergente legata all'industria e al commercio e formata da capitalisti, possidenti e

Welcome back, Turkey!

Bu yazının Türkçe'sini buradan okuyabilirsiniz.

Today, on Wikipedia's 19th birthday, the Wikimedia Foundation has received reports that access to Wikipedia in Turkey is actively being restored.* This latest development follows a 26 December 2019 ruling by the Constitutional Court of Turkey that the more than two and a half year block imposed by the Turkish government was unconstitutional. Earlier today, the Turkish Constitutional Court made the full text of that ruling available to the public, and shortly after, we received reports that access was restored to Wikipedia.

La situazione in Russia

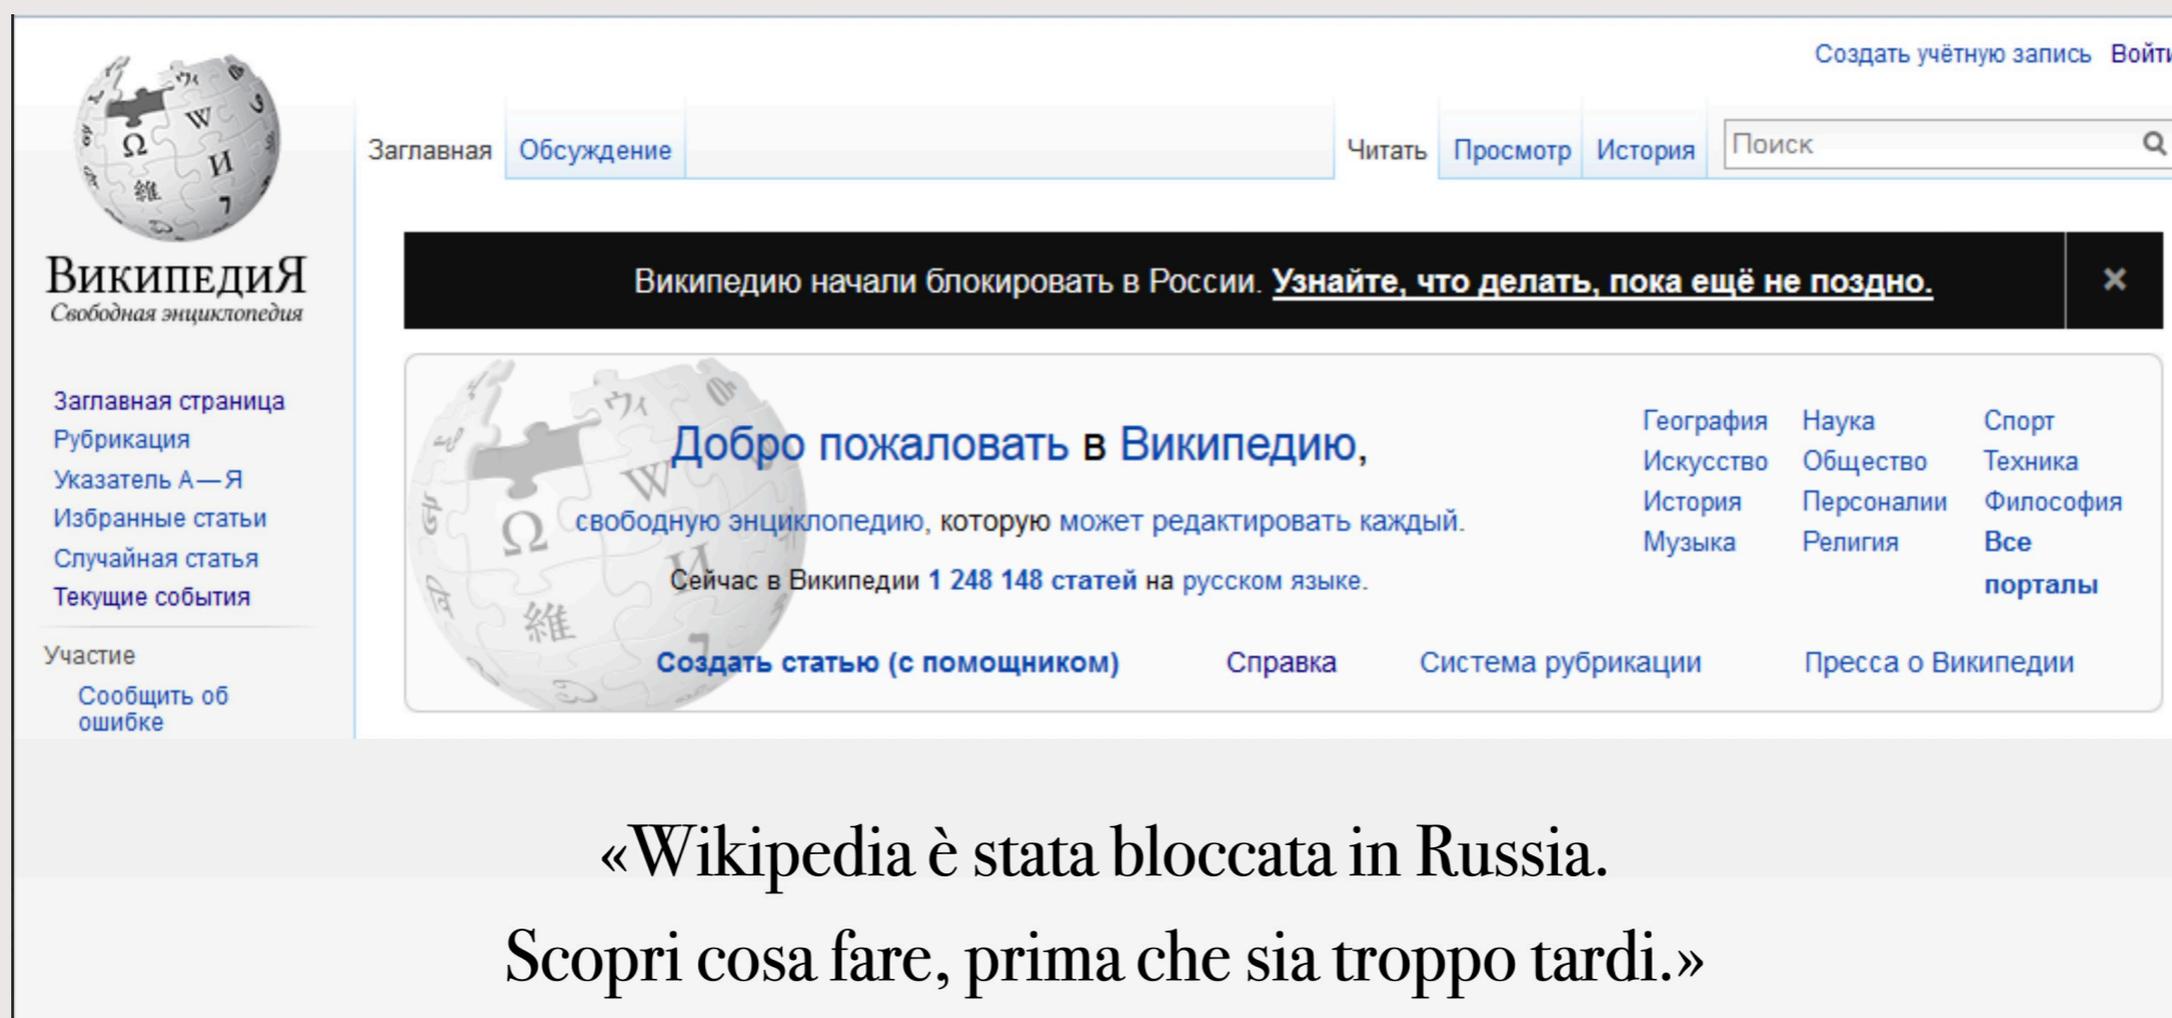

- Legge federale 139-FZ/2012: istituzione del Registro dei Siti Proibiti
- Leggi federali 31-FZ e 32-FZ/2022: leggi sulle fake news, introduzione della censura di guerra tramite la modifica degli artt. 207.3, 280.3 e 284.2 del Codice penale russo
- Legge federale 255-FZ/2022: legge sugli “agenti stranieri”, apportante modifiche alla l. 121-FZ/2012

Blocco di Wikipedia in Russo (2015)

Fine introduzione: «Sotto la guida di Putin, la Russia ha compiuto una transizione dalla democrazia verso modelli autoritari e dittatoriali. Esperti e organizzazioni per i diritti umani criticano l'attuale regime russo per la corruzione, l'aumento della limitazione della libertà di stampa, le violazioni dei diritti umani, la persecuzione e l'incarcerazione e l'omicidio di oppositori politici e la mancanza di elezioni libere ed eque.»

Critiche: «Con l'intensificarsi degli arresti politici, le riforme proibizioniste e conservatrici e la generale militarizzazione della società, tra gli esperti di scienza politica sono apparsi paragoni tra il governo di Putin e l'autocrazia di Stalin.»

Conoscenza libera in Russia

Привет! История такая, я почти 25 лет работал в МГУ доцентом на факультете психологии. На прошлой неделе я был в командировке в Бакинском филиале МГУ, читал там студентам лекции по психофизиологии. Внезапно приказом проректора МГУ меня «по производственной необходимости» вызвали в Москву ближайшим рейсом.

Вчера в деканате факультета мне сказали, что в есть достоверная информация, что в ближайшую пятницу Минюст признает меня инагентом. Передо мной положили две бумаги — приказ с увольнением по статье «за прогулы» и заявление «по собственному». Я выбрал последнее.

Вчера вечером прошло общее собрание «Викимедиа РУ», на котором я рассказал эту историю. Общим решением было закрыть организацию. Процесс ликвидации продлится несколько месяцев. Надеюсь, что больше никто не пострадает. Такие дела.— [Стас \(Стас Козловский\) \(обс.\) 07:38, 19 декабря 2023 \(UTC\) \[ответить \]](#)

«Privet! La storia è la seguente: lavoro alla МГУ da quasi 25 anni come professore associato presso il Dipartimento di Psicologia. La settimana scorsa ero in viaggio di lavoro presso la sede di Baku della МГУ per tenere una lezione di psicofisiologia agli studenti. Improvvisamente, per ordine del Prorettore dell'Università Statale di Mosca, sono stato convocato a Mosca con il volo successivo “per necessità lavorative”.

Ieri, nell'ufficio del preside della facoltà, mi è stato detto che c'erano informazioni attendibili sul fatto che il venerdì successivo il Ministero della Giustizia mi avrebbe riconosciuto come “agente straniero”. Mi hanno posto davanti due documenti: un'ordinanza di licenziamento con motivazione “per assenteismo” e una dichiarazione di “dimissioni spontanee”. Ho scelto quest'ultima.

Ieri sera c'è stata un'assemblea generale di Wikimedia RU, durante la quale ho raccontato quanto successo. La decisione generale è stata quella di chiudere l'associazione. Il processo di liquidazione durerà diversi mesi. Si spera che nessun altro debba pagare. È così che stanno le cose.» — Stas \(Stas Kozlovsky\) \(disc.\) 07:38, 19 dicembre 2023 \(UTC\)

The Legal Fees Assistance Program of the Wikimedia Foundation ("WMF") has been established to help secure funds for legal assistance in appropriate cases for Wikimedia users who serve in a community administrator, arbitrator, email response, or project governance role that is specified in this document. For ease of reference, this document will use the term "support role" to describe these specified roles.

The Legal Fees Assistance Program is intended to help with the costs of a legal defense arising from a support role in the unlikely event that a user should face legal action for their actions in such a role. This program aims to help users in support roles to have high-quality legal representation, which otherwise may have been beyond their means. WMF enjoys access to a network of outstanding lawyers and litigators across the globe who specialize in Internet law and other legal areas. Although legal challenges are unlikely, we want to assist eligible users in support roles worldwide in the selection of qualified counsel or the costs of their defense (or both), discouraging unwarranted lawsuits and legal threats against those users.

There was a Request for comment on this program, which closed successfully. The program has been approved by the Board of Trustees in its October 2012 meeting. Please also see the frequently asked questions \("FAQ"\).

Hello and welcome to the anti-disinformation initiatives and tools repository!

Wikimedia communities have been working for years to promote trustworthy information and to act against disinformation. This work is multifaceted and takes many shapes: some communities develop lists of reliable or unreliable sources; others organized media literacy trainings; some create bots or machine learning software to automatically detect harassment, use of bad sources, or article quality; and, other volunteers work collectively to develop WikiProjects that ensure accurate information was shared on complex topics such as COVID-19 or climate change.

There is a vast number of activities, projects, and expertise related to countering disinformation within the Wikimedia communities. However, these projects deserve to be more widely known and publicized across the communities themselves and beyond them.

The Global Advocacy team at the Wikimedia Foundation launched a public mapping to collect anti-disinformation initiatives and tools developed at the local level across Wikimedia projects and create a repository of projects—confident that volunteers and affiliates can use it to better understand the movement's resources against disinformation, easily access and implement these to strengthen their own work addressing this challenge, and get ideas on how to continue curbing false and misleading information worldwide.

Perennial sources list

	[RSP] Generally reliable in its areas of expertise: Per RSP, editors show consensus that the source is reliable in most cases on subject matters in its areas of expertise. The source has a reputation for fact-checking, accuracy, and error-correction, often in the form of a strong editorial team.
	[RSP] Marginally reliable: Per RSP, the source is marginally reliable (i.e. neither generally reliable nor unreliable), and may be usable depending on context. Editors may not have been able to agree on whether the source is appropriate, or may have agreed that it is only reliable in certain circumstances. It may be necessary to evaluate each use of the source on a case-by-case basis while accounting for specific factors unique to the source in question. See Wikipedia's perennial sources list for more details.
	[RSP] Generally unreliable: Per RSP, there is community consensus that the source is questionable in most cases. The source may lack an editorial team, have a poor reputation for fact-checking, fail to correct errors, be self-published, or present user-generated content. Outside exceptional circumstances, the source should normally not be used, and it should never be used for information about a living person. Even in cases where the source may be valid, it is usually better to find a more reliable source instead. If no such source exists, that may suggest that the information is inaccurate. The source may still be used for uncontroversial self-descriptions, and self-published or user-generated content authored by established subject-matter experts is also acceptable.
	[RSP] Deprecated: Per RSP, there is community consensus to deprecate the source. The source is considered [generally unreliable, and use of the source is generally prohibited. Despite this, the source may be used for uncontroversial self-descriptions.
	[RSP] Blacklisted: Per RSP, due to persistent abuse, usually in the form of external link spamming, the source is on the spam blacklist or the Wikimedia global spam blacklist.
	[RSP] Varied consensus: Per RSP, the community's consensus on the reliability of this site depends on one or more factors (for example, Forbes articles by staff are considered generally reliable, while articles by contributors are considered generally unreliable). See Wikipedia's perennial sources list for more details.

Note: If you add/remove a source in the "generally unreliable", "deprecated" or "blacklisted" categories, please update WP:CITEWATCH/SETUP/GENERAL § WP:RSP, or leave a note at Wikipedia talk:CITEWATCH if you need help.

Improve Knowledge Integrity

We are working to extend the verifiability of content and increase resilience to misinformation.

Project overview

The strategic direction of “Knowledge as a Service” envisions a world in which platforms and tools are available to allies and partners to “organize and exchange free, trusted knowledge beyond Wikimedia”. Achieving this goal requires not only new infrastructure for representing, curating, linking, and disseminating knowledge, but also efficient and scalable strategies to preserve the reliability and integrity of this knowledge. Technology platforms across the web are looking at Wikipedia as the neutral arbiter of information, but as Wikimedia aspires to extend its scope and scale, the possibility that parties with special interests will manipulate content, or bias to go undetected, becomes material.

We have been leading projects to help our communities represent, curate, and understand information provenance in Wikimedia projects more efficiently. We are conducting novel research on why editors source information, and how readers access sources; we are developing algorithms to identify statements in need of sources and gaps in information provenance; we are designing data structures to represent, annotate, and analyze source metadata in machine-readable formats as well as tools to monitor in real time changes made to references across the Wikimedia ecosystem.

Reference Quality in English Wikipedia

Jun 2023

We operationalize the notion of reference quality by defining reference need (RN), i.e., the percentage of sentences missing a citation, and reference risk (RR), i.e., the proportion of non-authoritative references.

The World Health Organization and Wikimedia Foundation expand access to trusted information about COVID-19 on Wikipedia

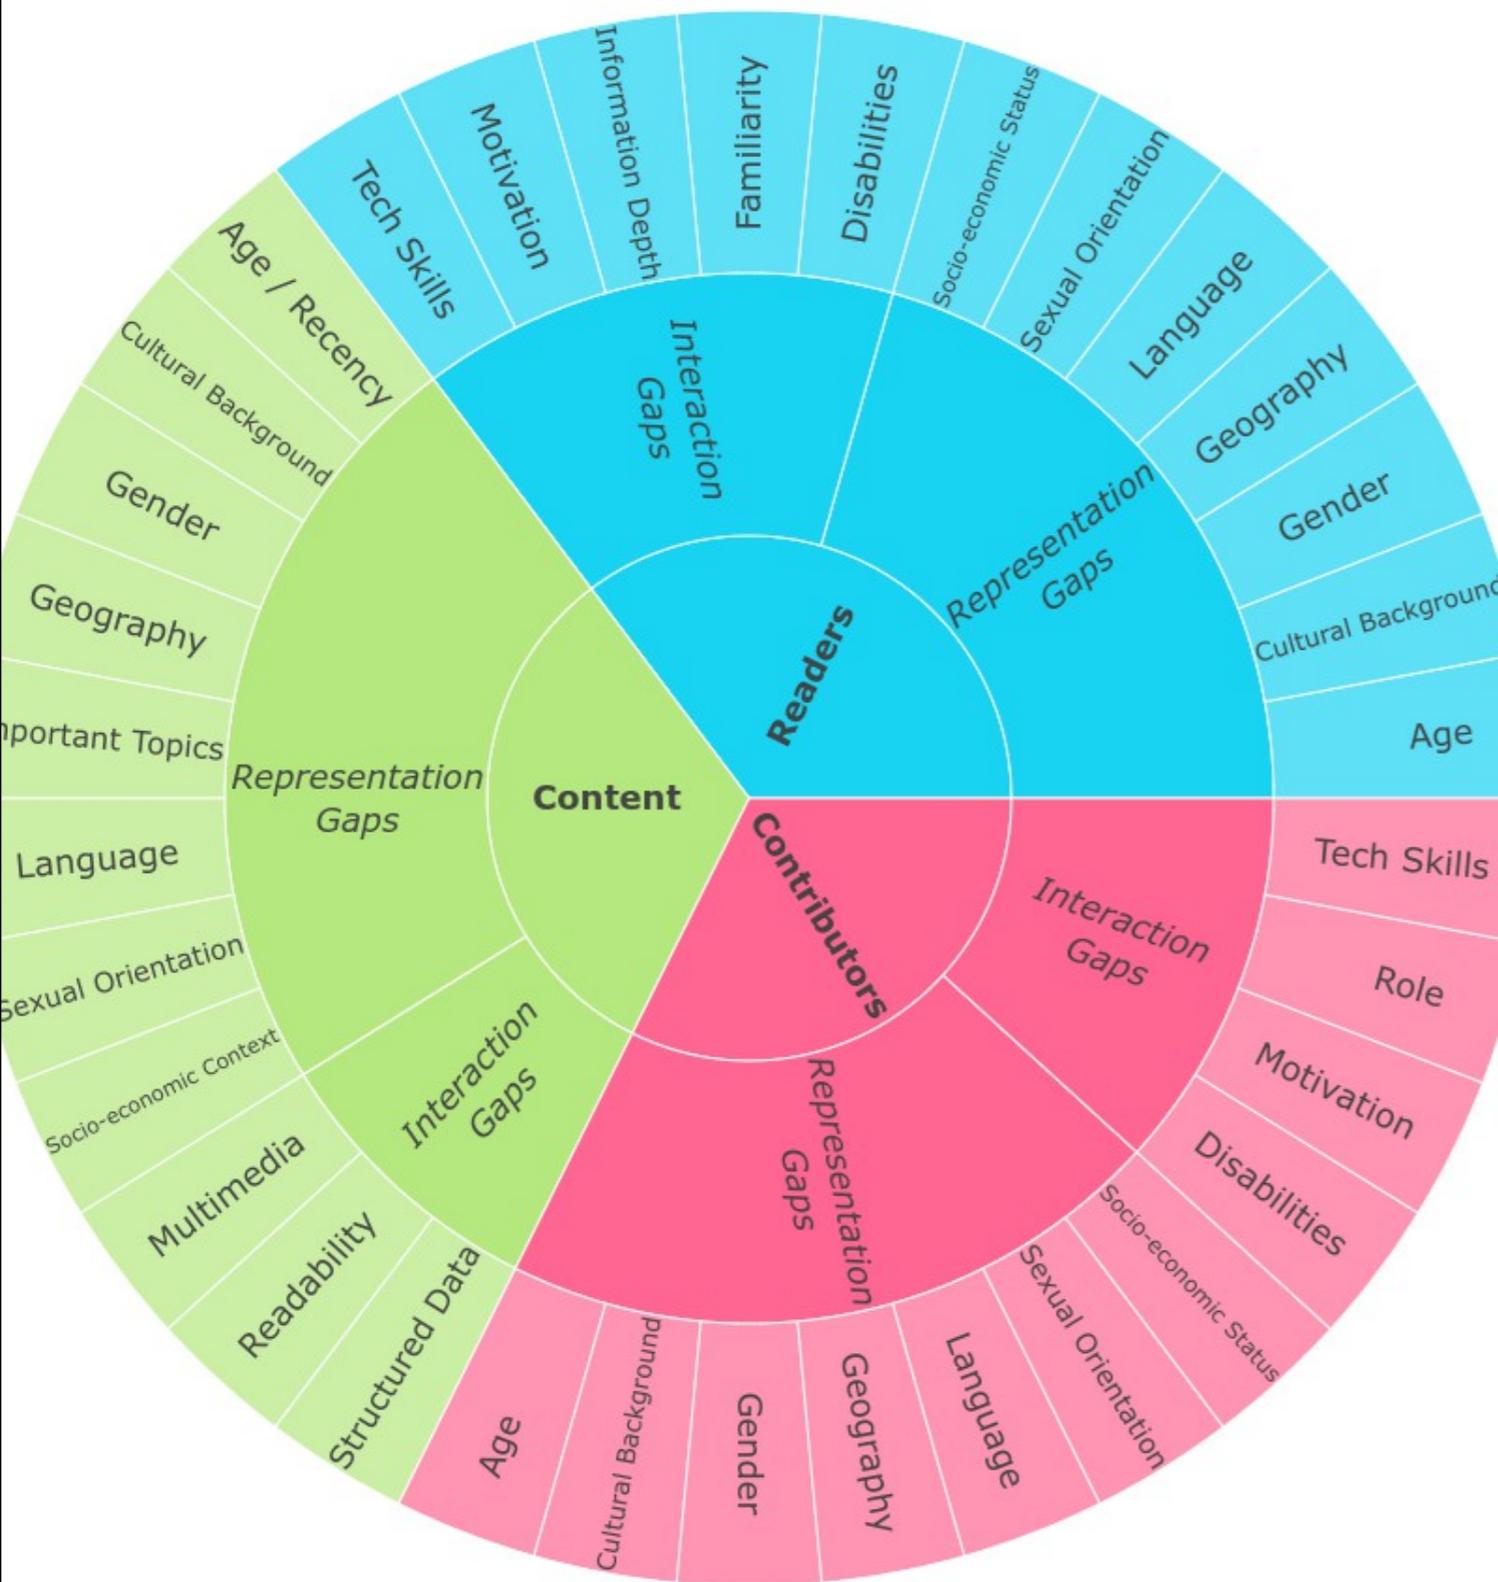

The collaboration is part of a shared commitment from both organizations to ensure everyone has access to critical public health information surrounding the global coronavirus pandemic

22 October 2020 | News release | Geneva | Reading time: 3 min (853 words)

The World Health Organization (WHO) and the Wikimedia Foundation, the nonprofit that administers Wikipedia, announced today a collaboration to expand the public's access to the latest and most reliable information about COVID-19.

The collaboration will make trusted, public health information available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike license at a time when countries face continuing resurgences of COVID-19 and social stability increasingly depends on the public's shared understanding of the facts.
